

My Teen Needs What?

Did you know that your teen still needs well-child visits and shots based on your teen's age? During a well-visit, your teen can get necessary shots, a school physical, and a weight check with nutrition and physical activity counseling. You and your teen can also talk to your teen's doctor about the human papillomavirus (HPV) vaccine to protect your teen as he or she grows older.

At the well-child visit, you and your teen can ask any health questions on information you need, such as growth, development, hormonal changes, or any other health topic. This gives you and your teen a great opportunity to see if his or her health is where it needs to be. Best of all, your teen can get all these health checks done in one visit.

Remember, great care equals great health!

Call your teen's doctor today to schedule an appointment.

Making an appointment is the first step in making sure your teen gets the health care he or she needs.
